

THE EDUCATION PROGRAM IN ANATOMY
PRESENTS

Why do clinicians get to have all the fun (with names)? Anatomical Latin and why it matters

MacAnatomy Event Series

Thursday,
March 7, 2024

6:00pm - 7:00pm | HSC 1A6

The language of anatomy is Latin. You use it constantly, even when you may think that you aren't using it. The aim of this talk, from Latinists who teach and research anatomical Latin, is to demystify the Latin of anatomy, to show you how straightforward (and fun) it is, and to make an area of your worklife that may sometimes seem baffling more comfortable for you.

Register online by March 4th at:
<https://macanatomy.ticketleap.com/admin/events/why-do-clinicians-get-to-have-all-the-fun-with-names>

Stephen Lewis and
Claude Eilers

McMaster University
Greek and Latin Studies

